A Thought

They that plow iniquity, and sow wickedness shall reap the same.—Job. 4:8.

He who commits injustice is ever made more wretched than he who suffers it.—Plato.

REFORESTATION
A GREAT NEED

The United States department of forestry has begun work in Georgia to set out little pine saplings. This is a forerunner of the great reforestation plan of the government, and the work should be encouraged.

The establishment of the Appalachian park and forest reserve in this immediate section will also be another step in the program of reforestation. Very few people stop to appraise the real value of what is proposed for the government to do and many fail to appreciate the great blessing this young trees available for planting with in the next years.

Recently the state conservation committee of New York state distributed 8,700,000 saplings for reforestation in that state and it is the purpose of this body to have at the state nurseries 17,000,000 young trees available for planting within the next two years. Without disparagement of the state forestry bureau, Tennessee has never given proper legislative encouragement to the matter of conservation, and has depended in the main upon the government to look after this important work.

Millions of young trees could be used at the present time to replace those that have been cut for lumber and those that have been destroyed by fire. The state, like the nation, has been cutting timber for in excess of growth. There are thousands of acres of cut-over timber lands in Tennessee that are not being used for agricultural purposes. These acres are lying idle, with not even trees growing up on them.

People of the state should take more interest in the reforestation problem. When the legislature meets again definite action should be taken looking to the preparation for tomorrow in our lumber needs. The government will not be able to do all the work. The state by showing greater interest will cause the government authorities to do more and by working together millions of dollars will be added to the resources of Tennessee.—The Journal and Tribune.

AND THAT'S THAT

Here is a little straight-from-the-shoulder talk about matters lying near our heart. There seems to be a feeling among some business men that a newspaper has no business to make money. Why not? It is the most exacting business in the world, the most trying in every way. It means long hours and the greatest care in its conduct.

The newspaper has the entire public to deal with. It is criticized on all occasions. It has to deal with all the cranks in the community, and to do this successfully requires judgment and patience. It has power, and that power, to the credit of journalism, is nearly always wielded for the public good. No question of vital concern to the home people fails to find a strong support from the home newspaper, and this, too, without remuneration.

The publisher sends his money to further these projects and the community never gives a thought to the matter of cost to him. It is not paid out of the public pocket. Every town needs a good newspaper, and the way to have it is to assist in making the business profitable. The newspaper wants every concern to prosper. Why should not this good-will be returned? To make a profit, to earn interest on the investment, the newspaper must have a living rate for its paper and its advertising space.—N. C. Dalton, in Winfield (La.) News-American.

FELLOWSHIP OF PRAYER

Daily fifteen Bible reading and meditation prepared for Commission on Evangelism of Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America.

WEDNESDAY
Winning Forgiveness

Read Mt. 6:1-15. Text: 6:14. For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you.

"God's forgiveness involves three things: (1) a wrong done to God by a man; (2) the man's repentance, that is, the wrong regretted, stopped, and, if possible, made right; (3) a change on the part of God from disapproving to approving love."

Meditation: Jesus was continually emphasizing the truth at we limit our own lives by the attitude we take towards others. That the quality which we possess, both of forgiveness and love for others, determines in what measure we shall have the forgiveness and affection of the Father. In many ways we control our own destiny.

Personal Question: Is there anyone who has wronged me and repented whom I do not forgive?

Prayer: Help us to remember, O God, that we are members of a great family. Let us so live in love with all men that the grace may enrich the lives of all. Let no life be hindered by anything we may say or do. Show us thy will and let us do it with joy through Christ. Amen.

PISTOL WEAPON OF THE COWARD

If one were to take an average daily paper from any place any day and look carefully through it, he would perhaps be surprised at the large number of tragedies recounted for which pistols are directly responsible.

Most killings result from a quarrel or grudge, fancied or real. One or both of the victims has a pistol, draws it and tragedy ensues. Many deaths from accidental shooting occur, either from children playing with the gun or the owner accidentally exploding it. The pistol is the weapon of the bandit and lawbreaker everywhere.

All of which brings us to the point. Of what value are these pistols, any way? Is it not the very fact of their possession the reason why shootings occur nine times out of ten after a quarrel? Self-defense is the favorite plea of the slayer, but would there need to have been any shooting at all if the pistols hadn't been easily accessible?

For some reason or other, men seem to think it is a symbol of manliness to carry a gun when it is, of course, only the mark of a coward, afraid to live unarmed. The average citizen rarely finds trouble when he isn't looking for it, just as he rarely averts it when he is looking for it. As long as men continue to carry guns and keep them in their homes there is going to be an excess of shooting and killings.

Laws to regulate their use are futile if they are not enforced, as they seldom are. Perhaps the remedy is to educate cowardice out of people, if this is possible. Perhaps if children were taught to rely on their own moral courage for protection and were not given toy guns to play with, another generation would see this matter quite remedied.

Hal Cochran's DAILY POEM

PERHAPS your mother works all day to get the house in shape. She likes to have it looking trim and fit. And when she's done, she isn't, but she's in an awful scrape, 'cause this meddling hands have ruined it.

And, too, she'll back toil and hour to put her half-up right, to make it stay the way it ought to be. Then, suddenly, it faces all its style and it's a fright because these hands have pulled the hairpins free.

The bedroom closet's tilted up; she's laid all things away. The shoes, the gowns and other things all placed. And then a little time, she creeps slowly 'er that way, and soon the whole affair is much disarranged. In living-room, in dining-room, throughout the "Home, Sweet Home," from one end to the other, sounds are heard. A cheerful little laughter, while the baby's on its road, announces that more wrecking has occurred. Does mother mind these baby pranks, and does it make her mad? Well, hardly, folks! She takes such things with ease. The fact that baby's learned to creep has only made her glad, and tin hands can do just as they please.

NEW BUILDINGS
NEAR COMPLETION

Brosheer-Brummett Additions Almost Done—Other Work Is Progressing

Three handsome store buildings are nearing completion on Cumberland avenue, two of which are practically done now.

The Brosheer-Brummett hospital building on the west side of the hospital entrance is being finished in the most modern style. No expense is being spared to make it an attractive place for a nice business.

The entrance and floor are being tiled today. Other interior work is being done. No tenant has been obtained for it.

The eastern addition of the building is practically finished. The entrance to it has been tiled while the interior floors are of wood. A communication from the Atlantic and Pacific Tea company today stated they would take possession of the building next Tuesday.

Construction work is progressing on the new Chadwell building on Cumberland avenue, brick work now being done on the second story. The lower part of that building will be occupied by the Chadwell shoe shop.

FAIR WEATHER STIMULATES
CITY IN CLEANING STREETS

Fair weather yesterday was an opportunity for cleaning streets that it is not being slighted by the city. Mud and rubbish which has accumulated in the gutters during the past few days were being shoveled up and hauled away under the direction of the street cleaning department this morning.

Some drainage work is being done at the corner of Fitzpatrick and Cumberland avenues. Ditches for the water which does not run through the culvert are being cleaned out so that the water may escape more easily.

J. F. MILLER TO BUILD
NEW STORE IN EAST END

J. F. Miller is preparing to erect a two story frame building on east Cumberland avenue near the bridge. The lower part of the house will be used for a store and the upper story, consisting of five rooms, will be for a residence. Concrete bases are being made now and construction work will begin soon. Permit for the building was granted at the city commissioners' meeting Monday morning.

Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton
NO. 4—THE TIN MOUSE IS FOUND

Just as the Twins were passing the clock.

The rest of the Doofunny people all stayed behind, while Nancy and Nick went off to find the tin mouse. "The tin mouse had hidden somewhere because he knew he was guilty."

This was what he had done. He had jumped out and frightened the pin-cushion lady, and the pin-cushion lady had fallen on the wooden waddle duck, and the wooden waddle duck had such a start that he skidded twenty inches and frightened the tin soldier's horse, and the horse had shied and stepped on the peanut boy, breaking his nose.

"There!!! I'm all out of breath. But you see how very guilty the mouse was. No wonder he hid. Doofunny Land was almost empty, for all the people were waiting at the court house, except those who had duties at home that they just couldn't get away from."

"The cuckoo was one."

Just as the Twins were passing the clock where he lived, he popped out. "Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Cuckoo!" he went three times. "Hello!" cried Nick.

"Hello!" cried the cuckoo. "What are you doing in Doofunny Land?" "Hunting the tin mouse. Did you see him?"

"No—not for a day or two. He always comes to see me regularly, runs up one of my strings and pays me quite a visit. But he hasn't been here lately, and I was wondering what was wrong!"

"He's wanted at the court house for breaking the peanut boy's nose," said Nancy. "Why the heck!" exclaimed the cuckoo. "He's as gentle as a lamb. I don't see how he could."

Back skipped the Twins to the court house, where Mister Fuzz Wuzz was waiting.

TO DARTFOLDS
Fair Dartfolds, we weep to see
You haste away so soon;
As yet the early-rising Sun
Has not attained his noon.
Stay, stay,
Until the passing day
Has run,
But to the end of time,
Having played together, we
Will go with you along.

We have short time to stay, as you,
We have as short a Spring!
A quick a growth to meet decay
Sorrow, or anything.

We die
As four hours do, and dry
Away
Like the Summers rain:
As pearls of morning's dew
To be found again.

To Blossoms

Fair pledges of a fruitful tree,
Why do ye fall so fast?
Your date is not so past
But you may stay yet here a while
To blush and gently smile,
And go at last.

What! were ye born to be
An hour or half's delight,
And so to bid goodbye?
Tis pity Nature brought ye forth
Merely to show your worth
And lose you quite.

But you are lovely leaves, where we May read how soon things have
Their end, though ne'er so brave;
And after they have shown their pride
Like you a while, they glide
Into the grave.

—Robert Herrick.

YOUR GARDEN

Choose a position full in the sunlight for growing chrysanthemums in
your garden.
They are a plant requiring careful and painstaking care to bring them into lavish bloom for which they are justly celebrated.

When new garden chrysanthemums are received from the nursery as small pot-grown developed cuttings, plant them in soil lavishly enriched with well-decayed manure.

The chrysanthemum is a prodigious feeder on organic matter and needs great quantities of food for proper growth.

Probably the best manner of planting is to work a shovelful of manure into the spot where each plant is to be set.

Failure to overemphasize the need of sufficient manure and moisture in growing chrysanthemums may lead to failure. Don't neglect this most important feature in cultivation of the species.

If you would have straight and well-developed plants, remove the growing tip to induce branching. It is a good thing to pinch out the top of the shoot after three or four pairs of leaves have formed.

Too much importance cannot be attached to stopping early branching, which should be completed before the middle of July, however. Unless this is done, the plants will develop into great sprawling bushes, yielding poor blooms and crooked stalks for cutting.

After the last stopping of branches has been made, give your chrysanthemums an extra feeding of diluted liquid fertilizer in alternate forms of nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia or manure.

This extra feeding should be applied once a week before the soil is watered for the day.

Thoroughly hoe the ground about the plants to insure a thick mulch.
Stop extra feedings by the time the color starts showing in the buds.

It is a good plan to drive stakes close to the plants after they have started to come up to insure erect flowering shoots.

Should you desire but one single and great flower plant, disbud all but one flower while growing.

But in general practice, where the plants are especially desired for decorative purposes, it is best to let all the flowers mature into what florists
call "sprays of bloom."

Although chrysanthemums, except the pink and white varieties, are quite frost hardy, exposure to the cold of late-frosting plants should be guarded against by some sort of temporary shelter erected over the plants.

POWER CUT OFF SUNDAY FOR ELECTRIC CHANGES

Interruption in the electric service Sunday was caused by some necessary changes and improvements at the sub-station, according to officials of the Kentucky Utilities company. Some wooden structures were moved from Bloomsbury avenue and this, of course, could not be done safely without cutting off the current.

Sunday was selected for the work because there are fewer users of the electric service on that day. Those who have electric ranges were notified early in the day that the current would be off. So far as is known, there will be no further interruptions in service in the near future.

Georgia Lady Says She Has Grown Stronger by Taking Cardui—Thoroughly Convinced of Its Merits.

Clyattville, Ga.—In a statement which she gave at her home on R. F. D. 1, here, Mrs. T. A. Copeland said: "I have, I believe, avoided a good deal of suffering by the use of Cardui, and am thoroughly convinced that it has been of great benefit to me."

"Before the birth of two of my children, I grew so weak and nervous I could hardly go, and suffered. I had a friend who told me of Cardui, so the next time when I grew so weak and run-down I began to use it. I used it three months. I grew stronger and less nervous. The baby was stronger and a better baby, and I really believe it was because I built up my strength with this splendid tonic."

Cardui has been successful for more than forty years. Thousands of women have written to tell of the beneficial results obtained by taking Cardui, and to recommend it to others. It is a mild, harmless, purely vegetable medicinal preparation—a product of practical experience, scientific investigation and pharmaceutical skill. Sold everywhere. NC-169

THEY HAVE 'TEAPOTTED' SINCE 1797

WASHINGTON, Mar. 26.—Capital capitol scandals are not new. The United States had an outbreak of government scandals in the 70's as bad as the present scandals are.

The amounts involved weren't as large in dollars and cents, but money wasn't handled in such sums in those days. The equivalent values were as large.

The first of the scandals "broke" in President Grant's administration, in 1872.

Vice President "In"

The Union Pacific railroad was building. It had government financial support on a large scale. A company called the Credit Mobilier was formed to do the work and to sell material, equipment and supplies to the road.

The idea was to charge ridiculously high prices; to take in payment Union Pacific stock and bonds at prices ridiculously low.

The government being interested, it became necessary to "split" the "graft"—they called it "boodle" then—with numerous officials. When exposure came it was found that these officials included the vice president, the speaker of the house, three senators, several representatives and scores of departmental executives in nearly every governmental branch.

In 1873 a particularly bold treasury raid was attempted. Congress voted stiff salary increases to all its members, not only for the future but such an outcry went up that the lawmakers were frightened into re-

TRY NEGRO FOR LYNCH MURDER

Commonwealth Witnesses Say Defendant Pursued Victim—Defense, Self-Protection

HARLAN, Mar. 26.—The first murder case on the docket was reached yesterday in the Circuit Court, when the case of the Commonwealth vs. B. Mount was called. B. Mount, colored, came to Lynch from Logan, W. Va., sometime last summer. Not long afterwards, around July, he was arrested for the murder of Jim Jones, colored. The Commonwealth introduced witnesses, who swore that they saw Mount running after Jones in the street and shooting at him until he finally killed him. The defense denied this and claimed that Jones seized him the next year, but in the meantime many had drawn their money and the government never got it back.

210 Indicted
In 1874 it was discovered that distilleries throughout the west had been defrauding the revenue departments. Secretary of the Treasury Bristow was aware of the steal and had been fighting it, but the grafters had representatives in every governmental department where they needed influence and laughed at him for a long time.

Two hundred and forty indictments followed this exposure, including the chief clerk of the treasury and the private secretary to the president.

In 1876 Secretary of War Belknap was caught selling government appointments and signing government contracts at a profit to himself. Impeachment proceedings were begun against him but before he could be thrown out of office he resigned.

From the fact that another Republican administration followed Grant's, it might be guessed that the people didn't take these scandals very seriously. But they did. The next campaign was between Hayes and Tilden, in which the Democrats won popular victory, thought they lost the presidency by a partisan electoral commission.

Cost Blaine Presidency
The Star Route scandal "broke" in 1881. It related to mail transportation by other than the regular railroad and steamship lines. Much western transportation was by stage then and prices were high. The Postoffice Department was shaken to its foundation, the second assistant postmaster general was indicted, one of its own members was tried by the Senate and scores of political careers were blighted for all time.

HARLAN BOY BUSINESS MANAGER OF KENTUCKY KERNEL

HARLAN, Mar. 26.—Lyle Whitehead of Harlan, a student in the University of Kentucky, has been elected business manager of the Kentucky Kernel, University publication, for the year 1923-25. He has served on the paper this year as assistant circulation manager.

James G. Blaine was hit by the Little Rock & Fort Smith Railroad failure scandal, and though his defense was pretty good, the affair had much to do with costing him the presidency in 1884.

The "embalmed beef" scandal of the Spanish-American war was an event of hardly more than yesterday; the Ballinger scandal of the Taft administration, involving Interior Department grants of Alaskan resources to private mineral interests, of scarcely as long ago as that.

In the republic's very early history there were scandals, too.

Army contractors were accused of graft in Washington's day.

Senator William Blount of Tennessee was impeached in 1797, though acquitted; Justice Samuel Chase of the federal Supreme Court, also acquitted, had 13 votes of guilty in an impeachment trial cast against him by senators in 1804.

The motor of the car is still sealed. There has been no work done on the engine since Sergt. Cole started on the trip. The motor has been running nearly all of the time since the start. The car attracted wide attention on its trip from Knoxville, people all along the way having read of its wonderful record.

Telephone service in the East End resumed

Telephone service in the East End which was put out of commission by the fire at Arthur Johnson's barn early Saturday morning, was resumed at noon Monday. Linemen were dispatched to the scene of the damage immediately and succeeded in repairing a part of the damage Sunday. A ten-pair cable was burned in two by the flames.

THE NEW "SUPER-PLIODYNE" RECEIVER ONLY TWO CONTROLS ON NINE-TUBE SET

BY ISRAEL KLEIN
Unlike the super-heterodyne in principle, yet equal to it in simplicity of control and in wide range, degree and selectivity of reception, a nine-tube receiver, using six stages of tuned radio frequency and two of audio-frequency, with only two controls!

No howling, no re-radiation, yet fine selectivity.

Successfully operated on a 12-foot aerial!

These are the characteristics of the new "Super-Plodyne" receiver designed by C. L. Farrand, New York consulting radio engineer, who exhibited his set recently before the Radio Club of America at Columbia University.

Farrand, in his receiver, has overcome the difficulties met in construction of even two or three-stage tuned radio-frequency circuits. The controls are so intricate and the balance so delicate that it is almost impossible to tune them.

On the Dial
This intricacy has been avoided in the super-plodyne by the simple method of creating a bank of variable condensers, all tuned at the same time by a single dial working the condensers by means of worm gear arrangement. The condensers are electrostatically shielded from one another and are adjusted beforehand for greater efficiency under the single control.

The only other control on the set is the dial for the antenna inductance.

Farrand's design is such that from free to ten stages of radio-frequency may be used.

Oscillation is avoided by use of a w principle, by which any number of radio-frequency stages may be employed. Between the grid and the plate of each tube Farrand has connected a non-inductive, low capacity inductor, which changes the phase of the coupling current flowing between the grid and plate circuits, offsets most of the feedback caused by the capacity of the circuit and the inductor, and absorbs what remains as a fed back.

Resistances
The value of resistance necessary to nullify the grid to plate coupling is dependent upon the design of the circuit, as well as the circuits, and is critical. For storage battery operation, a resistance of 25,000 ohms gives satisfactory performance for multistage operation. One hundred thousand ohms is satisfactory value for the presaturation cell tubes and may vary between 30,000 and 120,000 ohms.

Transformers
The transformer windings should be tightly coupled. A suitable design consists of 100 turns of No. 24 S. W. G. wire on a tube, two inches diameter and 2 3/4 inches high, comprising the secondary. The primary should be wound with 25 turns of the same wire on a

A. T. and T. Head Explains Position With Reference to Radio Broadcasting Suits

The situation of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company with reference to radio broadcasting is presented below by W. B. Thayer, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

In view of the conflicting accounts and interpretations of the suits recently instituted by the company to protect its patents affecting radio telephone broadcasting, it will perhaps be helpful to relate the circumstances that resulted in the present patent situation.

Some time before the war the Bell System research laboratories began development of what is now called the vacuum tube, as a long distance wire telephone amplifier or repeater. It was this development that made possible transcontinental telephony.

The laboratories of the General Electric Company, had also undertaken the development of this apparatus for other purposes.

As was inevitable, with two great experimental laboratories engaged in similar research, each company acquired inventions and improvements of mutual usefulness.

Patent Pending During War
With the coming of the war and the paramount requirements of the army and navy in the field of communications, each company put aside considerations of patent ownership, and there were rapid transmission by wire and wireless.

When the war ended the necessity for this emergency disregard of patent rights, a valuable art had been developed which no one in the business of communications could use without infringing upon the rights of the other.

The primary wound in opposite direction to the secondary. The end of the primary winding directly under the grid end of the secondary should be connected to the plate battery. The other terminals follow as usual.

The secondary tuning condenser should have a capacity of .00025 mfd.

Coupling these condensers together involves such hard work to adjust each correctly, in relation to the others, that this is the most difficult part in hooking up the receiver.

of others.

Under such considerations there could be no further manufacturing of certain apparatus, nor further development of this art, and the navy department of our government requests this company and the General Electric Company to try to relieve the situation for the general welfare.

In response to this request, negotiations were initiated and carried through to an arrangement of cross licenses to which other owners of patents in this field were afterward admitted. For practical operation under this arrangement, it was necessary that the parties to the agreement be given the specific uses of the apparatus in question that were logical to their business.

It was in this way that licenses for certain uses in connection with radio telephony came to us, as our directors reported to the stockholders at the time.

Fundamental Purpose
This company's prime purpose in operating under these licenses has been such development of the radio art as would be useful in relation to telephone service.

Actuated by this prime purpose, we established an experimental broadcasting station in New York in order to be better able to study not only radio transmission problems, but also public tests in broadcasting entertainment, and to furnish advice to our associated companies with respect thereto.

By this time there was widespread popular interest in broadcasting, as was evidenced by the growth of the industry. The industry was furnishing apparatus for radio reception. A realization of the extent of this interest led to a sudden demand for broadcasting stations for individuals and concerns wishing to establish a contact with the public for their own benefit by means of either.

Consideration of many of these applications disclosed that all of the economic factors involved, as well as the high costs of operation and maintenance, had not been fully realized. It was apparent that if there were a free sale of broadcasting apparatus, some purchasers would experience disappointing results. It was also clear that a multitude of stations would create a condition of congestion that would certainly lessen, and such a monopoly.

HUNT'S WASHINGTON LETTER

WASHINGTON, Mar. 26.—The disciplinarian of the Republican party in this time of turmoil and trouble is not a loud-voiced, muscular, masterful individual, swinging a bull-whip and seeking to enforce obedience by main strength and threats of punishment. He is a soft-spoken man in the higher ranks of the G. O. His voice is never raised above a subdued conversational tone. But there is a purring, soothing quality to it that quiets and calms where loud tones and harsh words would only irritate and exasperate. Like a good man out striding an elephant that has been stampeded by a mouse, John T. Adams, chairman of the Republican national committee, whispers honeyed words into the ear of the beast and bids it behave itself, watch its steps and move with the dignity befitting its age and honorable position.

Twice within the last year has Adams been forced to quiet the G. O. P. pachyderm with forceful but honeyed words. First was when President Harding came out in favor of the world court. The party elephant has a world court complex and the Harding pronouncement caused cold chills to corrugate the beast's hide.

"Easy, now, easy," Adams whispered. "No naughty world court will catch you. The integrity of the Republican party is worth more than all the world courts that were ever convened."

That crisis was successfully passed.

More recently, Adams has been forced to exert his calming influence to prevent an undignified stampede over the Daugherty situation.

Republican leaders in the Senate, apprized of some of the matters to be developed in the Daugherty investigation, sought to ease their fears for the party by getting Daugherty out of the cabinet. The party screws were being applied to the White House to force Daugherty out when Adams intervened.

He saved the day for Daugherty—at least until Daugherty has had his day in court. Whether, by saving Daugherty, he also served the party, is yet to be seen. But at least he blocked what might later have been shown as a hasty, undignified and damaging maneuver.

A pink-cheeked, gray haired, unobtrusive little man of 62 is Adams, who for 42 years has been engaged in marking doors and window sashes out in Dubuque, Iowa. He likes to think of his life's work in terms of the vistas revealed through his window sashes.

This sentimental, meditative trait is also revealed in his conversation. The quietest voiced, softest spoken man one will find in Washington, outside the Department of Justice.

As he sees it, his job as chairman of the Republican committee is not to protect first the candidacies of individuals holding or seeking to hold office under the party. It is to maintain intact the machinery of the party organization itself.

TWO KILLED IN BREATH.

IT SUNDAY AFTER QUARREL. HAZARD, Mar. 26.—Two men—one a Democrat, the other a Republican—met, quarreled and battled to death Sunday in Breathitt county. Reports received here ascribe it to be a result of the tragic feud at Clayhole when partisans battled at an election place.

The dead are:

Fred Day, 45, Democrat.

Arney Davis, 31, Republican.

Both men were relatives of participants in the Clayhole fight and are reported to have quarreled several times.

The duel was staged near James Blanton's farm on Quicksand creek, late Sunday afternoon. Day was married. Davis was single.

Some Prejudices of Ignorance Yet to Be Overcome

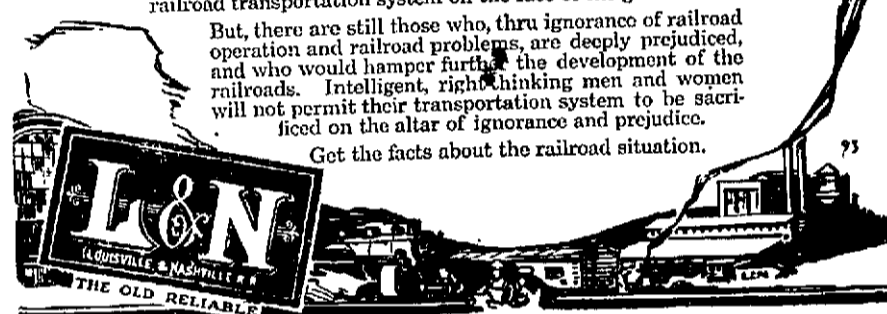

From their earliest history, the railroads of this country have been hampered in their development by the prejudices of the uninformed. It is recorded that in 1828 the school board of Lancaster, Ohio, refused to permit the schoolhouse to be used for a discussion as to whether railroads and telegraphs were practical.

"You are welcome to use the schoolhouse to debate all proper questions in, but such things as railroads and telegraphs are impossibilities and rank infidelity. There is nothing in the Word of God about them. If God had designed that his intelligent creatures should travel at the frightful speed of fifteen miles an hour, by steam, He would have clearly foretold it through His holy prophets. It is a device of Satan to lead immortal souls down to Hell."

It is further recorded that the citizens of Frederick, Maryland, actually organized a fund of $10,000 to pay a railroad to keep out of their town. In spite of such foolish, religious hysteria, superstition and prejudice, this country now enjoys the finest railroad transportation system on the face of the globe.

But, there are still those who, thru ignorance of railroad operation and railroad problems, are deeply prejudiced, and who would hamper further the development of the railroads. Intelligent, right-thinking men and women will not permit their transportation system to be sacrificed on the altar of ignorance and prejudice.

Get the facts about the railroad situation.
